which there are precedents established by law, plus certain types of extra-hazardous duty unique within the Central Intelligence Agency field of operations. Covert office representatives (OSO, OPC, Commo) were requested to assemble categories of extra-hazardous duty applicable to their office operations. It was further agreed that these lists should be prepared and forwarded as soon as possible to each member of the Working Group in order that the material can be available for discussion at the next meeting of the Working Group. Each office representative will be responsible for forwarding copies to each Working Group member.

The Working Group concurred that extra-hazardous duty pay could not be made on a retroactive basis, but that a system of meritorious service awards and cash benefits would be more properly applicable to a situation of that kind. It was suggested that CIA [redacted] be reviewed to determine whether or not present regulations covering meritorious service awards are adequate for or acceptable to covert-office activities. Security considerations will always be a factor in the announcement of awards for meritorious service in covert-office operations.

7. The Working Group agreed that any list of extra-hazardous-duty-category benefits must exclude medical benefits which are more properly a subject of other regulations covering the Agency's responsibilities to its employees.

8. The meeting was adjourned at 1700, to meet again on Thursday, 20 December 1951.
